No.	Title	Explanation
1	Installing Livelink in police premises and remote sites across London.	To enable London to achieve the default position of police officers giving evidence via video whilst offering victims and witnesses opportunities to give their evidence via video from remote sites
2	Delivering innovative and more cost effective e-learning	To compare e-learning methodologies in order to understand 'what works' in order to reduce training costs across the police service by working with the College of Policing to develop and enhance a nationally available product
3	Collaborative Procurement	Providing forces the funding to deliver the savings identified through the Collaborative Law Enforcement Programme (CLEP). The CLEP report identified the potential to save up to £137m but did not allocate a budget to enable the work streams to be resourced. Where work streams have been advanced this has been with the good will of local forces. The budget will be available to the eight work streams operational leads and the National Procurement Group to deliver several sub work streams
4	Police Workforce Reform	In October 2015, the MPS commenced a significant piece of work with Deloitte - aiming to propose a new workforce framework for policing. The output of this work is a coherent programme of workforce reform covering how we attract, develop, reward and exit police officers. The proposed police workforce framework has been developed in consultation with NPCC, Home Office, CoP and a small number of other forces. The model is scalable across the service, yet sufficiently flexible to take account of local force needs. The purpose of the bid is to secure funding to develop detailed business cases and implementation plans for some of the key levers, specifically Specialist Entry (Detectives), Secondments and Reservist Capability To ensure this is a collaborative bid and that the model is suitable for a range of different forces, Thames Valley Police and Lancashire Police have agreed to partner with the Met on this project.

5	Digital Contact Centre	MPS is planning a digital contact pilot in 2016 using social media channels initially. It will be a contained trial - beginning with those members of the public who are already trying to use social channels to engage the Met as a 101-type service. It will test how the public might use digital channels if we give them the opportunity, help the MPS to understand the efficiency benefits and how to effect an end-to-end redesign of our processes to suit digital contact. We are currently engaged in discussion with the Police ICT company who are seeking a lead force to develop digital contact. In a lead force role, we would ask neighbouring forces to act as observers in Phase One of the pilot and then be part of Phase Two. We can provide estimates of benefits but they are extremely hard to quantify given the lack of policing experience in this field.
6	Safetember'	We want to test the Public Health England model of insight-led behavioural marketing in the field of crime prevention. The MPS has an outline agreement with the Behavioural Insights team ('Nudge Unit) to complete a piece of research next year which will include developing insight into prevention of cybercrime and mobile phone theft. We are seeking resource to develop a national campaign using that research along the lines of 'Dry January' and 'Stoptober', health campaigns aimed at reducing drinking and smoking. This will test both an insight and a partnership model, drawing in commercial partners, potentially from the insurance, financial services, online and telecommunications sectors to involve them in a campaign. We can provide comparative ROI for 'Stoptober' but until we have completed the insight research, we cannot identify the ROI for a national crime prevention campaign.
7	Blue Light Collaboration	The bid to is scope the operational efficiencies and opportunities including the user requirement, regarding the co location of the following services: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Emergency Service Control Room facilities for London; • London Resilience Partnership Shared situational awareness facility for day to day activity, rising tide and major incident response of London; • Strategic Coordination Centre for the Strategic group within the command and control location. This will include the MPS, LAS, LFB and London Resilience Partnership (incorporating an important link to London Councils). We anticipate a bid of approximately £500k and it will be a proof of concept bid. This will enable of a critical foothold for the London Blue Light Collaboration work which is committed to develop an Outline Business Case specifically on the sharing of Control Room facilities by May 2016.
