Smart London Board meeting
Tuesday 4th February 2020
10.00 - 12.00
Accenture, 1 Plantation Place, 30 Fenchurch Street, London, EC3M 3BD

Attendees: Theo Blackwell, Jeremy Skinner, Nathan Pierce, Ekaterina Lichtenstein, Jen Hawes-Hewitt, Miranda Sharp, Omid Shiraji, Andy Hudson-Smith, Jim Wood, Rikesh Shah, Lucette Demets, Julie Alexander, Yinka Makinde, Tobias Stone, Anna Powell-Smith, Fiona Lalo, Lewis Cannon, Patrick Andison, Eddie Copeland, Maria Geftar, Nick Swanson, Kathryn Gray

Apologies: Julia Thomson, Linda O'Halloran, Jarmo Eskelinen, Volker Buscher, Duncan Wilson, Rebecca Kemp, Amy Darlington, Ben Johnson

Agenda

- NHS OneLondon patient data sharing – a major London data-sharing initiative with citizens on how medical data could be used. Amy Darlington from One London will set out how citizens are involved in the discussion through 2 summits in London.
- The London First Data Commission - bringing the public sector and business together to ask the big questions about how to create value for our city through data and insight sharing. The Secretariat of the Commission will set out progress and we can think about how data held by private bodies can be used to solve city problems.
- London Office of Technology & Innovation – Eddie Copeland will talk about LOTI's work on responsible data-sharing principles and LOTI's data-sharing work.

Stuff that's happening which we'd like your help on
Our Civic Innovation Challenges (2.0) are currently being designed, we'd value input into how the next iteration of this open call approach is set. The team are also mulling a new platform to serve the GovTech community – Nick Swanson and Maria Geftar from the GLA

The GLA is developing its first combined internal Digital & Technology Strategy, we're looking for some fresh eyes on how our new approach is landed.